APPLY THE REMEDY.

The BULLETIN said, on Saturday last, in a brief item, referring to the hand concert at Thomas Square on the previous evening, that "the hoodlum element figured in the grounds to the annoyance of decent people." Since then our morning contemporaries have each commented on the prevalence of this species of annoyance at moonlight concerts, and indicated the remedy. The fact of the existence of this unpleasantness is patent: no one denies it. The remedy is easy, and within reach—the presence of an active policeman at the concert. It simply remains for the authorities to take action, and see that the officer is on hand; and we feel sure that it will be done.

CHINESE AND JAPANESE.

In speaking of the Asiatics which come to this country, some people here seem to regard the Chinese and Japanese as one and the same people, possessing in common the same general characteristics. A very limited acquaintance with the two peoples is sufficient to convince any intelligent man of the erroneousness of this conclusion. Scarcely any two civilized nations can be named with national peculiarities more definitely marked, distinguishing them from each other, than China and Japan. That the people of the two countries have some characteristics in common is true, but no more true than the same assertion in regard to an Englishman and a Zulu. Here we have Chinamen and Japs in considerable numbers, and mere casual observation detects the wide difference between the main peculiarities of each nationality. The Chinaman holds tenaciously to the dress of China, while the Jap adopts the Western costume on the first opportunity. The Chinaman is morose, uncouth, and unpleasing in manner; the Jap is the politest and most gentlemanly man in the world, not excepting the Frenchman. The Chinaman is a man of callous nature and not easily wounded in his feelings; the Jap is as sensitive as a delicate and refined woman. The Chinaman is a most fervent lover of money, works hard and lives hard to acquire it, and sticks to it like a limpet to a rock; whereas the Jap spends his money, if permitted, as freely and thoughtlessly as the European or American. The foregoing are some points of difference which are palpable to any observer, and which make it surprising that anyone should place the two in the same general classification.

HOW TO SELECT JURIES.

The method of selecting juries here, whatever may be the rules governing the procedure, seems not to distribute jury duties evenly and fairly among the persons liable to serve. It sometimes happens that the same man is called upon two or three terms in succession, or with only one intervening term, while others equally eligible are altogether omitted. This can scarcely be considered a fair distribution of duties and responsibilities. Perhaps there is no fairer or better method of selecting jurymen than from an alphabetical list of all eligible persons, taking one letter or a given number of letters for each term, in regular order, until the alphabet is exhausted. In this way, duties which most people prefer to avoid if they can, are pretty equally distributed.

OFFICIAL INCOMPETENCE.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—This morning's "Daily Gazette" has the following:—"Posters in four languages signed by J. H. Soper, Marshal, were put up on Monday, offering a reward of $500 for the detection of Kok Yuk's murderous assailant. Swarms of Chinamen eagerly scanned the red posters in their vernacular, and there appeared to be no small excitement among them."

The reward is furnished by the United Chinese Benevolent Society. It took this action promptly when informed that the Government had no funds available for the purpose. As it is close to the end of the fiscal year, it is not surprising that the Government means for any extra expenditure.

If that statement is correct, it should not pass unnoticed.

A most atrocious murder has been committed, and the Attorney-General can offer no reward for the detection of the murderer because "it is close to the end of the fiscal period," and he "is without means for any extra expenditure."

If this is the view the Attorney-General takes, and it is the best he can do, he is unfit for his office. The credit of the Government is surely sufficient to justify offering a reward.
